

APPLICATION INFORMATION

Master of Theology, Master of Divinity, Master of Arts

We are pleased that you have made the decision to apply for admission to the master's program at the International Graduate School of Leadership (IGSL). The following information will help you properly complete the application process.

UNDERSTANDING STUDENT CLASSIFICATIONS

Students are accepted into various programs based on their qualifications. Before you complete an application form, be sure that you are qualified for the program, to which you are applying and have requested the correct set of application materials for that program.

1. Audit Student: Audit status is available to anyone who desires to take a course for personal enrichment without receiving credit for the course. An Audit Student only needs to complete a Special Student application, enroll in classes, and pay related fees. However, should he/she desire to receive credit for coursework done as the term progresses, he/she should first pass the English Proficiency Test (EPT) and receive prior approval from the Admissions Committee. Courses are open to Audit Students on a space-available basis only, and instructors are not required to grade their coursework. Class fees are the same as those for Degree Students.
2. Special Student: An individual who has not been admitted to a degree program may be allowed to take courses for graduate credit as a Special Student. Special Students must hold a Bachelor's degree, complete a Special Student application, pass the EPT, and be accepted for Special Student status. They are allowed to take a total of 32 credit hours on a space-available basis. Acceptance as a Special Student does not guarantee regular admission. Class fees are the same as those for Degree Students. Students from developing countries who are not receiving institutional scholarships or grants may request a subsidy prior to registration, which covers more than half of a student's regular tuition.
3. Degree Student: An individual who meets all degree-program requirements may be admitted into one of the degree programs. A Degree Student must hold a Bachelor's degree, be of sound character as biblically defined, have enough ministry experience to discern God's call to Christian ministry, and be interested in leading a church or para-church ministry.

MABS Target Group

This program is appropriate for students who desire to minister as Bible teachers in a local church, a Bible school, or the community at large. Also, students who already have a rich background of practical ministry training and ministry experience, may want to study in this program to enhance their understanding of God's Word, and to be equipped as life-long learners and teachers of the Scripture.
